de-distorting agriculture removed

Union Agriculture Minister Piyush Goyal

(WTO) appellate dispute settlement, restoration of the body will be balanced to address asymmetries in Uruguay Round agreement," he said. "A good starting point for the reform agenda" of the WTO would be "removing the imbalances" in the agreement on agriculture, and ensuring a level-playing field, particularly for developing economies. He further said that as long-standing proponents of WTO reform, developing countries have, for almost 20 years, sought the elimination of unequal and trade-distorting entitlements in the Agreement on Agriculture. "Another positive step will be to build upon the work of the last several years, and to implement existing mandates such as a permanent solution for food security purposes," he said. The minister also said developing countries, particularly the least-developed countries (LDCs), have not been able to achieve an equitable share in world trade, therefore, the continued availability of special and differential treatment, for these countries, is imperative for them to address their development aspirations. Goyal said the reform process should not be used to further restrict the flexibilities, and policy space required by developing countries, to better integrate with the global trading system. "It should open more
